

The Science

It's not about the Woo-Woo, although we love the Woo-Woo. The fields of geology/geophysics, material science and physics have documented the unique energetic imprint upon these crystals that are transmutable and transferable.

Of particular scientific interest are the importance of biological flows, connections, and harmonic factors; how these affect our health on all levels and the study of the energetic field as a benefit and source of energetic support

There is harmony and wisdom within this energetic field. We want to have an understanding of the field, and all the energies that harmonize it together. The material world has rules of order that are connected to this field. Everything has a field around it. Everything, including our chemical composition has a kind of harmonic field.

Your body consists of three things, an electrical part, a light part, and a magnetic part. The combination of the three creates the chemical aspect. The chemical aspect is physical. The physical is nothing more than synergy. The body is re-creating itself constantly so if the energy becomes right, it is much easier for the body to re-create itself and be stronger. The body also needs other good ingredients which includes high quality food, water, and Meridian flows as well as good chakra activity.

These crystals are especially good with water. Our body is mostly water so it should be a perfect quality of water that we ingest. These crystals can give certain frequencies through the water that make the water more alive. You can merely touch a crystal to a glass or pitcher of water and organize it. Placing the crystals directly in the water often enhances mental health as the Lithia that is on the outer layer of the crystal disperses into the water. Most water that we drink is dead water. The crystal field restructures and restores water. Therefore, the plants change, surroundings change, and you change.

The energy field of these crystal clears you up so your body is more capable of healing itself. One of our biggest problems is that we are surrounded by negative frequencies. They come from our technologies harming the natural fields. Even if you want to be connected you have to go through the thick gray layers of the static which makes natural connection almost impossible. Your main important energy source comes from what China calls Chi and India calls Prana

These crystals have an interactive energy that combine with the unified field. They can create energy and you don't have to do anything. It's more like perpetual motion. It is more intelligent than we are.
